A CORYDON BOY WINS THE MEDAL

Large crowds attend Oratorical Contest at Sturgis, Friday night.

The annual contest of Central Oratorical association was held Friday night at Sturgis and was won by Wilson Ball, representative of the Corydon high school, who delivered a splendid address. The competing schools were Sturgis, Marion, Dixon, Providence and Corydon.

Two special trains carried 200 to attend the exercises, one train bringing about 100 from Corydon and a special train from here carried an equal number, besides a number being present from Sebree, Dixon and Providence. The judges were Dr. Geo. Clark, of Henderson; Rev. W. R. Cady, of Morganfield, and Superintendent, F. C. Spidle, of Princeton.

Dr. George W. Clark, chairman of the judges, caused quite a stir by first announcing that Marion had won, (even ought to have awarded them both) with the pretty girls and then when he announced that Sturgis had won, (they took the roof off) with their hospitality but who he finally announced that Corydon had won and walked over to present the gold medal on the year's orator, the Corydon voters brought down the house. While many were disappointed, all seemed to be satisfied with the decision, in all in all the occasion was a pleasant one for the young folks who are now anxiously looking forward to the next one.

A WORTHY COLORED COUPLE

Ike Wilson And Nellie Hodge Marry in Morganfield.

Last Wednesday Ike Wilson and Miss Nellie Hodge, two well known colored people of the city, were united in marriage at Morganfield, where the bride to be had gone to visit her mother.

Ike, who is Judge Blue's right hand man, besides being janitor for the Marion Bank, Southern Presbyterian church, the Press building, and the Postoffice building, is thrifty and exceedingly industrious. He owns his home on south Main street and has begun housekeeping there with his bride. Mrs. Wilson, before her marriage, lived with Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Duprey and was a good trustworthy servant entirely worthy of the confidence they placed in her and deserving of the many favors that extended to her long start on their mortal journey with the good wishes of many friends among the white people as well as the colored.

Elder Jenkins Killed.

Elmer Jenkins, son of G. F. Jenkins, of this city, was killed Tuesday in a head on collision near Chicago. We have not heard any of the particulars. His father left here soon after receiving the news to bring the remains home. His mother was a Miss Clark, being a sister of Rev. J. R. and Lem Clark, who live near the city. He visited here last week.

Chi-Namel Demonstration

AT THE CHI-NAMEL STORE

ON

MAY 23rd and 24th.

We have the sales agency for the line of all-purpose varnish, which is so far ahead of any varnish that has ever been sold in this community, that we particularly desire an early opportunity to show its good points to some member of every household in our business district.

What we want you to know about this wonderful varnish is something that cannot be told; but we can show you in a very few minutes that you get more for your money every time by using Chi-Namel Varnish for floors, woodwork, furniture, or anything about the house on which varnish is used.

This varnish is furnished in the natural color and also in a full variety of colors. It can be hammered and boiled without showing any signs of abuse. Any amateur can apply it to large surfaces and get just as smooth a finish as a professional finisher—no laps, no brush marks, no blotches to make a patchy appearance.

You will thank us for this invitation after you have come to know all about it.

Other features we want to show you are the Chi-Namel Ready-to-Use Graining Process, by which you can cover all blemishes in your old floors and make them any color you wish, and also produce the grain of oak or other woods.

Old carpets can be made into rugs and a new hardwood border will take the place of the ugly flooring at a cost of but 2c per square foot.

We will gladly explain all these features at our store if you give us the opportunity.

LITTLE GIRLS MAKE SERIOUS CHARGES

Jack Chittenden, well known here, the John Murphy Residence on Bellville St., is revenged.

OPEN AIR CONCERT AND REFRESHMENTS

Friday evening, May 16th, on the school grounds, there will be an open air concert, given by the school orchestra. The front yard will be brilliantly lighted and there will be plenty of seats to accommodate the crowd that may come to hear the music.

Ice cream, cake, lemonade, candy and ice cream cones will be served at reasonable prices. The purpose of this concert is to raise some money for the school improvement fund. It will be an evening of festivity. Those who don't enjoy music or good things to eat or the society of young people, need not come.

All refreshments are to be contributed by friends of the school. If you can make good candy show your loyalty by sending a box to the committee. If you have a favorite recipe for ice cream telephone us and we shall send for a freezer of it. If you can bake a good cake help a good cause by baking one for this occasion.

The residence occupied by Thos. Woods on Bellville street owned by Mrs. Maria E. Croft was burned to the ground soon after noon last Thursday. It

NEAR OUR BORDERS, HEINOUS CRIME

Committed In Hardin County, Ill.—Man Kills Wife.

Hardin county was the scene of a most heinous crime Monday afternoon when Ernest Lowry, son of Joe Lowry, murdered his wife, Sarah, who is the daughter of Frank Ledbetter. The crime was committed in the woods on the Joe Lowry farm five miles north of Cave-in-Rock about four o'clock Monday afternoon.

Lowry had been working in a field and was going through a patch of woods near his home and found his wife in company with Otto Callister, living on the grass. Lowry approached them and spoke roughly to his wife and said, "Now will you give me a divorce of mine?" "I will give you a divorce" was her reply. With this Lowry whipped out a revolver and fired two shots into her body, one striking her heart and one in the left breast. The woman died instantly. —Same town News-Gazette.

Bright Things.

Why not look for the bright things in every condition or circumstances in life? Surely it will give more pleasure now and additional pleasure when called up again. There is no object in nature which does not possess some bright spot, and, if we will patiently seek it, pleasure will be the result.

Apply this to men there may be similar results provided the same disposition is exercised. Every man, unless he has violated every law of chastity and honor, has a bright spot in his character. If it is found, it may become the means of restoring him to his right mind. And, when this desirable result is reached, he may be induced to grow into a noble example of manhood, and honor of himself and a blessing to his family and friends.

A bright and happy disposition is a rich possession and it gives one decided advantage in the struggle of life. It lightens the gravity of the burdens pressing down on the soul and, at the same time, induces speedy recovery of one's resourcefulness, the exercise of which is toward successful methods and results.

Wise and skillful approval of efforts is a great factor in the various fields of activity. The man who possesses such a disposition receives a hearty welcome into any society or community and his influence for good is universally recognized.—Ex.

One really good thing about a fire in Marion—there is never any salvage to worry over, no necessity for any fire insurance adjustor, just a wire to the insurance headquarters, "send check for policy on Mrs. Croft's house on east Bellville street, it burned Thursday noon." This sort of thing saves a lot of detail. When a house in Marion starts to burn, the bucket brigade, and by the way they are real heroes too, they pay no more attention to that house, but they procure carpets and coverings of various kinds and put on the buildings adjacent, then everybody furnishes a coal hod or two, the well in the yard is made to give up what little water it has, the blankets are wet and the other houses do not burn provided the first fire goes out before the well is run dry, of course when the water gives out the other buildings burn and they burn anyhow if there is any considerable wind and that's all there is to it, then there may be two or more wires sent to insurance companies to send checks. In this way it saves a lot of book-keeping and the owners of the houses take the insurance money and borrow about a third more from one of the banks and build another residence, not quite as good as the other but then its a shelter. This sort of thing has been going on ever since the Presbyterians built the first church in this section just 110 years ago and judging from the activity displayed in other lines of civic enterprise such as road building and the like, some other church will call attention in the year 2023 to the fact that they built a building in 1913 in Marion and that nothing has been changed during that 110 years and the houses will take fire and burn just the same in 2023 and the coal buckets and the little well in the back yard will be pumped dry and the insurance companies will send their checks just as they do now. What's the sense anyhow of providing for things that our great grandfathers got along without, they knew what they were doing, of course they did and what was good enough for us.

Water Works? Perish the thought.

The Coca-Cola Club.

To have the readers of the Crittenden Press fully understand the aims, purposes and high ideals of the Coca-Cola Club it will be necessary to state that the membership is confined very strictly to absolute devotees of coca cola. The meetings of this club are held wherever coca cola is served. The Officials consist almost entirely of members who start in as soon as the doors are open into the drug or other stores where this brownish fluid is to be had and it is a rule of the order that they do not go home until everything else is closed up, sometimes they don't go home then, but that will appear in the future proceedings of the club. There are of course a great number of officials. The president is termed officially, the Cockalorum, the Vice President the Cock-a-doodle, the Secretary the Cola-antous, the Treasurer, the Collator. There are many minor offices held by the members such as the Coldshoulder who never has but one nickel at a time and treats himself: the Collapse, the man who drinks not wisely but too much: the Collateral, the man who by some means has obtained a bunch of mining stock and desires to borrow money on it; the Collationer, this member is supposed to go home for his lunch but rarely does; the Collude and the Colluder, these two play into each others hands, besides these special officials there are bunches of Senators, Physicians, Lawyers, Dentists, Fluor Spar Grinders, Colonels, Majors, and Cattle-buyers, some of these people are always decorated with red ties while others wear no collar; they are termed Collingual because they use the same language, that is language with a coca cola accent. Tuesdays in each week the club meets in a gossipy way and some things are talked about and in a way that the Coca Cola Club should be ashamed of but they don't seem to be and at this Tuesday meeting the Press intends to have a reporter present and throw out to the wide world including Carrsville a report of the proceedings.

Marion is cleaner and in a better sanitary condition than it has been for years. Since the proclamation for the citizens to clean up the city last week was issued, there has been about 50 wagon loads of trash and dust hauled from all parts of the city. The people complied gracefully with the request to have a clean town, and the city did its part by sweeping the streets. Several wagons have been in use for days, hauling off litter. Monday the oiling of the streets began and it is progressing nicely up to this time.

A New Back for an Old One--How a Resident Made a Bad Back Strong.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop a agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Marion citizen.

J. O. Tabor, Mexico, Ky., says; was afflicted with kidney trouble for about six years. The pains in my back were severe and when I was stooping or lifting, sharp twinges passed through my loins. My back always ached more intensely at night and in the morning I felt lame. I tired easily, was languid and nervous and had headaches. The kidney secretions also passed too frequently and caused me annoyance. I took one and a half boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they rid me of every symptom of my trouble. I am now in good health."

Total cities who boasted of a Redpath Chautauqua last summer, it will be welcome news that Bohumir Kryl and his band is to appear on all the chautauquas on this system again this season. Bohumir Kryl is today known as one of America's five great band masters, and as a cornet player he has no superior in America. It will be recalled that he laid down the sculptor's chisel, after completing the statue of Gen. Lew Wallace at Crawfordsville, Ind., and made music his life work thereafter, at the suggestion of Sousa, and that he immediately sprang into great prominence.

KENTUCKY HAVING BRISK AWAKENING

Everywhere in State Things Are Happening.

NEW SCHOOLS BEING BUILT.

As Fast as Laws Are Passed For the Betterment of Rural Schools Counties Take Advantage of Them—Secure Services of Experts and Select Teachers More Carefully.

There never was a time in the history of the old commonwealth when its future looked as bright as it does in this year of 1913. No matter where one goes in the length and breadth of the state one hears schools being discussed. Many new buildings are being erected in the place of those which have so long been a disgrace to the communities that have permitted them to exist.

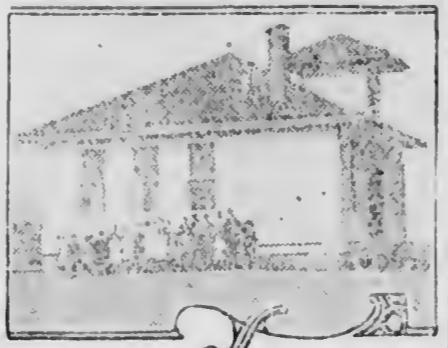

Plans are being discussed in many localities for larger grounds and better equipment. The teachers are being more carefully selected than in the past, and there is a general feeling that school problems should be fairly met and solved.

This feeling has resulted in marked activity in educational matters in all sections of the state. The county authorities have taken advantage of the new educational laws with on delay.

The last legislature passed a law allowing only boards of education to appoint supervisors to oversee the work done in the schools. At once over forty counties took advantage of the new law, and engaged the services of one or more experts to assist the county superintendent in this supervision work.

Pike County decided to try a rather unique plan of supervision, which seems to have worked admirably during the school year that has just closed. Instead of trying to reach the 105 small schools scattered over a large county that is often cut to pieces by swollen streams that flow through the bottom lands the board of education decided to have fifteen supervisors.

These supervisors were all teachers of strong personality and wide experience. All of them held first class certificates and had had normal training.

Of course there was not enough supervision over 105 schools to keep fifteen supervisors busy, so each of them taught his or her own little school out in the country. If the supervisor had taught from Monday through Friday there would have been no time for visiting the other six schools in his group.

The plan outlined for this school year has been for the supervisor to teach to hold school from Tuesday through Saturday, thus leaving Monday open for visiting the other schools.

By visiting three schools each Monday the supervisor teacher would be able to reach all six schools once every two weeks. This makes it possible for the county superintendent to have a report from an expert from every portion of the county twice a month.

With the supervisor handling a small group, bad roads cannot make the work impossible. There is also the added advantage that at the opening of the school year, when many young and rather inexperienced teachers are in great need of help, the supervisor is close at hand to give the required assistance.

Close and constant supervision is the price of success in any business, and our badly scattered rural schools are no exception. We have not got the returns from our expenditure of money on our rural schools because there was no supervision to learn where the leaks were and how they might be stopped or repaired.

Money and money in any amount needed will come as soon as supervision makes the public know that results will be obtained. Our children have been taught in any fashion that suited the individual that was in the neighborhood "keepin' school." Naturally the children did not know what was the matter when they failed to make suitable progress; neither did their parents.

Every one knew that the interest of both the children and their parents lagged. They also knew that many of the older children dropped out of school because they were thoroughly dissatisfied.

Reports from county superintendents all over the state show that there is a new spirit both in the teaching force and among the children under this new influence of supervision. It is a simple proposition. It is that both teachers and children are becoming conscious of definite work that is being done in a thoroughly systematic manner.

My Boy.

To "mother" he's ever "my boy."

No matter how tall he may grow,

Wherever he goes or stays,

He's ever "my boy," you know.

The years may pile on his head;

The tasks which he may assume,

Still leave him ever "my boy,"

Tho' roses of youth cease to bloom.

Praise be when the words are said,

By lips which fain would sing;

When a flush of pride the words

To the wrinkled cheek can bring.

When the words are spoken aloud,

From a heart that thrills with joy,

And a glow of love appears,

When 'mother' speaks of "my boy."

Lesser Lays Egg.

West Point, Ky., May 13.—

Mrs. Henry Bunker owns the only egg-laying Leghorn rooster.

The bird was added to her flock this spring and has a beautiful large red comb and a plump tail and all the marks of a pure bred Leghorn rooster. Mrs. Bunker noticed that the rooster would sit upon the nest and when in the yard would cackle like a hen.

Sunday morning Mr. Bunker found the rooster sitting upon a china nest egg and drove him off. No other fowls were about and directly the rooster went back on the nest, when Mr. Bunker again drove him off and was astonished to find a warm, moist, freshly-laid egg beside the claim egg. The rooster crowed and cackled just as usual with beans after laying.

The solidarity of a country is shown in its buildings. Western Kentucky is growing more solid, her buildings show it. In Western Kentucky, Sturgis is a bright spot. With only 1450 inhabitants she has splendid church buildings and a first class graded and high school building. Four fine brick churches have been built here in as many years.

The last has just been completed by the Christian congregation and will be dedicated Sunday, May 18th. Brother George L. Shively will dedicate and Brother M. Gano Buckner of Owensboro, will lead in a meeting, to follow immediately.

It will be a big event for Sturgis, a great reunion day for ex residents and one of inspiration for all friends who will go and share the celebration. Dinner will be served on the ground. All churches will unite in good fellowship and joy on this festal occasions.

Stories of The Town.

Things Serious and Trifling Talked About on the Streets of the County Hub.

Reported by R. C. HAYNES.

It was one of those lazy spring days, when the sun shone warm and bright, and there seems to be "nothing doing" on the streets and very little in the shops and stores. Even the post office seemed to fail to attract the interest usually attending the opening of the mail and the distribution of Uncle Sam's literature.

In the shade in front of one of our city barber shops, several men were congregated, some sitting on chairs, others seated on the edge of the sidewalk and a few standing close around—all seemingly interested in what was being said.

"Yes, gentlemen, old Nab was certainly the best all-around dog I ever saw," said a middle-aged man who occupied a prominent seat in the crowd of attentive listeners and who spoke as if in continuation of some truth he had been dictating to his audience. "I trained him up from a pup and he would always——"

"Talking about dogs," spoke up Dog-Owner No. 2, "I had a dog——"

"He'd always do whatever I told him to," went on Dog-Owner No. 1, not heeding the interruption of Dog-Owner No. 2, "even at the risk of his own welfare or——"

"I once had a dog," again interrupted Dog-Owner No. 2, "named——"

"—or others," persisted Dog-Owner No. 1, "and I could always trust him. It is my custom on Saturday afternoon to take a half-holiday, so, on one occasion, instead of going out to the city, as I usually do, I decided to give the blamed town the go-by and go fishing instead. Whistling for the dog, I said to him, 'Now, Nab, by George, I'm going fishing and I want you to——'"

"Gentlemen, that recalls to my mind a dog I once had," spoke up Dog-Owner No. 3. "He is dead now, dog gone him, and I'm not grieving because of his demise. However, he was a good watch-dog, which it is sometimes needful to have, especially in the country. The dog's name was Bounce and he was thoroughly onto his job when he came to——" want on Dog Owner No. 1, during the interruption of Dog Owner No. 3, "and I want you to see that no one, man or beast, trespasses on our premises." The dog, in reply, wagged his tail and lay down in the shade just inside the gate. I lived then, as I do to-day, in the Chapel Hill section and as the weather seemed propitious, I set out for Clayfield creek at noon and along——"

"I'm going fishing, old Nab," spoke up Dog-Owner No. 4, "that Dog

"As I have already said," interrupted Dog-Owner No. 2, "I had a dog named——"

"—set out about and alone," persisted Dog-Owner No. 1, paying no heed to the interruption of Dog-Owner No. 2. "I always prefer going alone on such occasions, as, in this way, I can devote my mind and attention to the catching of fish, and not be hindered by some one's tumbling into the creek or by conversation, as I never talk to myself. So I selected a good fishing-hole——"

"I had a dog once named——" again put in Dog-Owner No. 2, but his remarks were cut short by Dog-Owner No. 1, who went on:

"—selected a good fishing-hole, took a seat on the bank and——"

"As I have just remarked, gentlemen," again spoke up Dog-Owner No. 3, "old Bounce was thoroughly onto his job when it came to lending his aid in protecting the premises against the encroachments of tramps or other persons who, in the dog's judgment, looked suspicious or might be wanting to trespass on the sacred precincts of our home. I, of course, was away from the house most of the time, but in the fields at work, and my wife had instructed old Bounce at all times to keep a sharp look-out for anything in the nature of tramps, who being rather distrustful of the hobo fraternity. When it came to danger, however, whether real or apparent, Fluffy was as brave as——"

"I had a dog once," interrupted Dog-Owner No. 2, "named——"

"—found a good fishing-hole," pursued Dog-Owner No. 1, "and——"

"I would suggest, gentlemen,"

"I'm going fishing, old Nab," spoke up Dog-Owner No. 4, "that Dog Owners No. 1 and 2 yield the floor for the present, and let Dog-Owner No. 3 continue his story uninterrupted. What the last gentleman has related is interesting, though we story-teller can take up their respective adventures, one at a time, and relate them to a happy or disastrous conclusion. If this is so, by George, we avoid giving the party a twist, the eyes closed up, to say nothing of the dog owners themselves."

The suggestion of Dog Owner No. 4 met with the approval of both the audience and the story-tellers.

"As I have just said," went on Dog Owner No. 3, in compliance with the suggestion above given, "my wife, though rather distrustful of tramps, was, in case of danger, real or imaginary, as brave as a rough rider. My son Bill, likewise, was no coward, by George, and had aided much in the training of old Bounce. Leaving out tramps and other persons of a suspicious-looking appearance, the dog was of a friendly nature and was very fond of all the family, especially myself."

"I have never been acquainted particularly good-looking, being long and gangling and green-looking; and, at the time to which I refer, I wore on my face a heavy beard, chin-whiskers, sideburns and mustache. The beard was long and thick and of a reddish color. I was rather proud of my facial adornment, notwithstanding its off color. Fluffy, however, looked upon my whiskers with disfavor and was not backward in speaking disparagingly of what she termed their unsightliness. My son Bill—who was just arriving at the age when a boy begins to part his hair in the middle and to cast sheep's eyes at the neighbor girls—had his fun at my expense. But I knew a thing or two about whiskers—more than Fluffy or Bill. I knew, by George, that, properly displayed, they often cover up a multitude of ugliness. So, by George, I let 'em stand."

"One afternoon in November," continued Dog Owner No. 3, "I bridled and saddled old Bellzie, as good a mule as ever man mounted. He was christened Beelzebub; but we called him

Belzie, because the name was shorter and as Fluffy said, more euphonious. I had rigged up the mule for the purpose of riding out to town, so I mounted his back and rode off in that direction, never to return in due time.

"After knocking around, walking up and down the streets, to see who was and who was not in town, I sat down with one of my neighbors just outside a barber shop and began, in a friendly way, to discuss the political situation.

"'Reuben,' spoke up a barber, opening the door of the shop just wide enough to thrust his head out, 'you are next!'

"'Who?'—me?" I asked, in surprise. "I didn't know, by George, that I was next or the next after the next. However, if you can fix me up without disrupting your prices, I will give you a job, and down I went into the torsorial chair. After all, I reflected, it will be a pleasant surprise to Fluffy, bless her heart."

"So I instructed the barber to make a clean shave—chin-whiskers, sideburns, mustache and all—and off they went. By George, my face was as slick as a peeled onion and I was, to all appearances, a new man.

"After I left the barber shop, I went out on the streets, introduced myself to a number of my neighbors, smoked a few cigars and had a very good time.

"Ever since I married, I have made it a rule whenever I go to town to leave the day in time to get home by sunset, and I meant that this occasion should not be an exception. When I was about ready to start for home, however, the dad-gum sheriff summoned me to serve on a grand jury. By the time the case was ended, so we had paid it to the defendant to the amount of five dollars for monetary with the dignity of the Commonwealth, the evening shadows were creeping over the earth.

"As soon as I was discharged from official duty, I made haste to depart for home, knowing that Fluffy, bless her heart, would be awaiting supper for me and wondering at the delay in my return. So I made at once for the meeting-place where I had left old Bellzie.

"Right here, gentlemen, is where the trouble begins. Do you think that old mule would let me mount him? No, by George, he wouldn't. He evidently didn't recognize me and would, therefore, have nothing to do with me.

"Failing to make myself known to him and having no time to waste, I called to a couple of my neighbors who had not yet left town, and they came to my assistance.

"Unhitching the mule, the two neighbors placed themselves one on each side of the animal's head in such a way that he couldn't see me, and so I went up to him and climbed upon his back.

"As soon as the two men had stepped off, old Bellzie glanced back, as if to see who had mounted him, shook his head and started off down the road toward home.

"From his maneuvers, I knew he had passed an adverse judgment on my case, that in his opinion I had no right on his back, and I was aware also, by George, that he had it in for me if he got half a show.

"Get along now, Beelzebub," I said, using his full name, which I always did when I wanted to be or particularly friendly terms with him.

"At the sound of my voice the mule again glanced back, as if to confirm his opinion of the spuriousness of his passenger, and a second time shook his head. Old Bellzie had not even recognized my voice!

"It was no wonder, though, for with the loss of my whiskers and the cool, damp air blowing against my unprotected face, I had taken cold, and my voice, even now, sounded unnatural and somewhat funeral with its hoarseness.

"I was a dogged good horseman in those days, however, and I had no fear of old Bellzie's tricks, whatever they might be, or of being dislodged from his back.

"'Get up, Bellzie, confound you,' I said, in a wheezy voice, as the mule took his way down the road at a rather slow gait. In reply, old Bellzie shook his head, gave a few mild jabs—as if he meant only to give me a mere foretaste of what he could do, if occasion demanded—and again started off at the same rate of speed, as if to show me, by George, that he'd do as he dad-gum pleased about increasing his pace.

"Although it has been said that one must reason with a mule, I thought it best, on this occasion, to humor the animal, as I was, to his way of looking at things, a stranger and an interloper, and, in this way, I reflected, he will soon get used to my new facial expression and we will become as good friends as ever.

"So on we went down the road, traveling at a moderate pace, sometimes in a walk and at other times in a slow trot. We passed Crooked creek and had soon reached the point near which I lived. I was impatient to get home and surprise Fluffy. I knew the dear thing would be pleased by the absence of my whiskers.

"As we neared home, old Bellzie increased his speed. Presently we came up near where the road forked, one road leading up the hill to my home and the other on down to Ford's Ferry.

"I could see that old Bellzie was in a hurry, so I should wait. I tried to keep on down the Ford's Ferry road, but I could discern also that he had an idea that he would not do so.

"Just to tease him and to see what he would do, when we got to the division in the road I turned the mule's sides with my two heels, pulled the reins in the direction of Ford's Ferry and said, in a husky voice:

"Get along, Belzlie!"

"What old Bellzie did on that occasion right then and there—w-w-w—Billy would say, aplenty!"

Conscience Fund of Government

Received $990.00.

Washington, May 12.—Stricken by conscience a sorrowing citizen, who presumably had violated the Internal revenue laws, sent $990.00 to the Treasury today through a Los Angeles, Cal., clergyman, who said it had been placed in his hands by a visitor from the East. The check was turned into the "conscience fund."

LEAD AND ZINC ORES

The Percentage of Zinc and Lead from the Dirt Mined and Concentrated in Several States.

OTHER MINING NEWS.

The Press has received a Bulletin from the Geological Survey giving the percentage of zinc and lead in various veins from the ton of ore profit in several of the states where these two ores are extensively mined. For the benefit of those not fully informed in these usages it will be understood that one per cent of a short ton is twenty pounds when speaking any kind of mineral. In concentrating or cleaning the ore from the dirt a perfect, clear separation is rarely if ever made. A pure zinc blend consists of 67 per cent metallic zinc and 33 per cent of sulphur. Ordinarily in preparing this ore for the smelter or cleaning it 55 to 60 per cent of metallic zinc is considered good while galena or lead ore is made up of 57 per cent of metallic lead and 43 per cent of sulphur but ore numbered concentrates rarely go above 80 per cent metallic lead. A very low quantity of sulphur and is usually 10 per cent and less. The sulphur carried along with the mineral is estimated at 10 per cent of the total weight of the ore.

Anty Drudge—“Well, that's a sad state of affairs. Get her to try Fels-Naptha Soap and she'll complain no more about washing your clothes. No backaches from Fels-Naptha or hard work either. Your wife can do a day's washing before noon if she uses it.”

When Fels-Naptha Soap is used the hanging out is the hardest part of the washing.

No boiling.

No fire to keep red hot; no tiring and tedious rub-a-dub on the wash-board.

Fels-Naptha Soap itself does the hardest part of the washday work—loosening the dirt in cool or lukewarm water.

It usually means a fine sermon to see Rev. Gibbs before a congregation. Rev. McNeely made a very interesting talk in regard to their work. In conclusion, we bid them God speed on their journey through life.

“That's the sixth Studebaker we've passed—the only kind to invest in”

The only kind—because, as I always say, when a man puts money in a thing he wants to know that he's going to get the worth of it out again.

That's plain business as I look at it.

That's why I say the price doesn't tell you anything at all. There's only one thing that talks—except the wagon itself. That's the name of the maker.

When you buy a Studebaker you're buying a vehicle that has behind it and in it sixty years of experience—sixty years of success—and sixty years of reputation for the square deal. That's why a Studebaker always looks good to me.

My father used to say that Studebaker honor was as sure as a United States bank note. He was talking after having used a Studebaker vehicles since he was a lad, and he told me his father before him said, “Be safe—get a Studebaker.”

Vehicle builders can't hold that sort of reputation nowadays without delivering the goods. A Studebaker wagon has the best in it. That's why a man gets the most out of it—why it's always on economy.

Dealers may say to you something else is just as good. But when you buy a Studebaker, you're making a safe investment every time.

I. C. and Southern Will Establish Steamship Lines.

Information of interest to local shippers came yesterday when it was learned that the Transportation Committee of the Louisville Board of Trade was preparing to send out circulars regarding the establishment of two new steamship lines from New Orleans to South America by the Illinois Central and Southern railroads. The new lines will touch Montevideo and Buenos Aires, Argentina. John T. Telford, secretary of the Transportation Committee, has written for further information regarding the new lines. Upon receipt of this information, he will send out circulars to local shippers, who do a large business with the South America countries. Courier-Journal.

What They Think of Jim

Summer's at Home.

There are few men in Livingston county who are better and more favorable known than Jim Summers and in placing his candidacy before the voters of the county for the office of representative there is nothing that could be said of him as a citizen and high toned christian gentleman that is not already known by our readers.

Though handicapped by an “empty sleeve” Mr. Summers has made a success as a farmer and a businessman and his counsel has often been sought by his fellow farmers on important business questions and he has been called upon to serve there co-operative organizations in position of importance. Such a man is admirably qualified to serve as a legislator and he will doubtless have a large following in this and Crittenden counties where he is equally as well known and respected.—Livingston Banner.

A CARD.

To the Democrats of Crittenden Co., having been solicited by numerous Democrats from the various sections of the county to allow my name to be entered in the August primary for the Democratic nomination for the office of County Judge. I have, after a careful consideration for several weeks, decided to offer myself as a candidate for the place.

In so doing, I assure you that I am fully aware of the responsibilities that the position carries, and I feel that I can discharge the duties of the office to the satisfaction of the people of the county, and likewise in the interest of the taxpayers.

If nominated, I shall do my utmost in every honorable way to carry your banner to victory in November.

If elected I shall be the official of all the people in the county and stand for progress all along the line and economy in the expenditures of the county funds consistent with efficient service. You did me the honor four years ago to offer me the nomination which I now seek, this I was forced to decline for reasons given in the committee at the time.

If you feel that I can, and will serve you honestly and well I shall appreciate your support and I assure you that no willful act of mine shall give you cause of regret for having supported me.

Yours Most Respectfully

FLOOR SEAL SENTENTS

As reported by the Livingston Survey.

A PRESS Bulletin issued by the United States Geological Survey received by us yesterday confirms our statement of last week that the amount of fluor spar mined and marketed last year was by far the greatest ever recorded. The number of tons was 116,545 an increase over 1911 of 29,497 tons. The value at the mines amounted to $769,163 an increase over 1911 of $157,716.

The average price obtained for all classes gravel, lump and ground was $6.60 a decrease of 42 cents per ton from the year before. The fluor spar output of Colorado, New Hampshire and New Mexico in 1912 was but 2,135 tons.

We regret that Mr. Clem S. Nunn, who was slated to read a paper before the Lexington meeting of miners will not be able to be present. His views have been incorporated in a communication and will be read to the members. Mr. Nunn is a real forty niner in fluor spar, his enthusiasm for the mining interests of this district for many, many years has cost him years of time and bushels of money. If the same absorbing interest had been displayed by him in politics Western Kentucky would have furnished a straight old style, dyed in the wool democrat for President of the United States by the name of Clem S. Nunn.
